American Society of Agronomy Announces 2014 Award Recipient

MADISON, WI, Jul 07, 2014 – The American Society of Agronomy (ASA) announces the following 2014 award recipient to be formally presented at the ASA Awards Ceremony on 2014-11-05 during the scientific society's International Annual Meeting, Nov. 2-5, 2014. The annual awards are presented for outstanding contributions to agronomy through education, national and international service, and research.

Quirine M. Ketterings, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY – ASA Fellow: Quirine Ketterings is professor of nutrient management in agricultural systems at Cornell University in Ithaca, NY. She received her Ingenieurs (B.Sc.) in Tropical and Subtropical Agriculture from the International Agricultural College, Deventer, and her M.Sc. in Soil and Water from Wageningen University and Research Center, both in the Netherlands, and her Ph.D. in Environmental Sciences from the Ohio State University. She focusses her applied research, extension, and teaching program on development and implementation of adaptive management approaches with focus on agriculture and environmental management for the dairy sector.

To date, Quirine has co-authored 83 peer-reviewed publications and over 330 extension articles, and presented at many international, national and regional conferences. Quirine serves as co-chair for the Northeast Region Certified Crop Advisor board and has, for the past 11 years, organized their annual 3-day certification and continuing education training.

ASA Fellow

Fellow is the highest recognition bestowed by the American Society of Agronomy. Members of the Society nominate worthy colleagues based on their professional achievements and meritorious service. Up to 0.3 percent of the Society's active and emeritus members may be elected Fellow.
